

Dive Log

Keep your own record of dives made, in a layout that holds the detail an instructor or operator will ask about, including weight and conditions.

A dive per block — site, depth, time, gas, weight and conditions — signed off and kept as your own record of experience.

A RECORD, NEVER A PLAN

This is a record of dives you have made. It contains no dive tables, no depth or time limits, no ascent rates and no surface intervals, and it must not be used to plan a dive. Plan with your computer or tables, your training and your buddy. If anything here conflicts with your agency's own log requirements, theirs is the one that counts.

Diver	Certification and number	Agency	Sheet

DIVE

No.	Date	Site and country		Buddy
Max depth	Avg depth	In	Out	Duration	Surface interval	Repetitive dive no.
Gas and mix	Start pressure	End pressure	Suit	Weight	Water temp
Visibility	Current and conditions	Entry type	Computer used

Verified by — name and number	Signature

What was seen, what was learned, equipment notes

DIVE

[illegible]